Since the above was in type this young man has been brought to this city and the necessary steps taken to secure his admission to his insane asylum. He was accompanied by his brother and father, who are respected citizens and owners of a gentleman of considerable property. From them we learn that the young man is afflicted with the most violent form of mania, and is therefore very dangerous. Judge Peck has issued the necessary writ, and he is now on his way to Jacksonville.

The usually quiet little town of Winfree was the scene, a few days ago, of some of the most exciting and unusual occurrences upon the streets of a wildly degraded individual by the name of Rutherford. It is strange that a protestant preaching was in progress at Winfree, which was in Rutherford had regularly attended, and in which he became deeply interested. The Rev. Mr. Naylor, who was conducting the meeting—preached upon the evening of the 14th inst., with great earnestness, and the text, "Pray without ceasing."

Upon the following days signs of insanity were discovered in Rutherford by his friends, who found him peering and staring at the people who passed by. His father, brother, and a Christian gentleman, were induced to watch him. Our informant, a Christian gentleman of the town, who is a cordiality in his religion, for twenty-four hours, and could only be induced to cease by the Rev. Mr. Naylor. The Rev. Mr. Naylor, who was a Quaker, was a Quaker, and his crazy misinterpretation of the text led him to the insane act. After an hour or two elapsed, and the crowd had left him, his insanity assumed a more violent men, and destroyed furniture in the house in which he was staying, raved, and acted like a madman, until secured by force and taken to his family in an adjoining neighborhood. Before he became insane violent, he used to come one time upon the street talking incoherently and expounding those whom he met.

LYON AND LAMB.—The millennium approaches. We received yesterday the following journal from the Richmond Examiner at the head of its columns the following:

DEMOCRATIC TICKET.
For Governor
of Hardin.
For Lieutenant Governor,
JOHN W. STEVENSON, of Kenton.

The Conservatives of that gulfant State have wisely resolved to unite their forces, merge all former hostilities, bury their dead animosities out of their sight, and make one united and fraternal effort to sweep the country of Democracy. If their brethren of Connecticut will profit by any example so noble and so wise, the paltry minority of five hundred and forty-one votes, which the Radicals secured in that State last year, will be changed to a minority of thousands of votes next Monday at next. With the same harmony, there might even be reason to hope that the sleeping giant of the Empire State, might find thirty-one thousand with through love of liberty to cast their votes against the most ungentle and brutal despotism of modern times.

The course of the Louisville Journal, however gratifying is not unexpected. In the morning the noble editor, in his capacity, since the surrender of General Lee, is to be counted the articles of that paper. And there is no doubt that it is a more genuine love of old fashioned American Liberty than any 'loyal' State on the continent.

Good men everywhere will wish her conservative people's happy issue out of the contest into which they are entering.

A GISTLE WIFE'S EXPLANATION.—In the police court of Chicago, a wife thus ingeniously explained away serious charges of harsh treatment of her poor husband:

"One day, when she was running across the room, with her arms outstretched as jumped in her way and struck his wrist against the fork, wrenching it from her grasp by the tines. Then he undertook to strike her; but she held up a pan of hot dish-water between them, and, as it fell all over his head, he was obliged to stop. Angry at this accident and started to jump at her, but his head came against her hand, and she told him, 'You don't want to hurt her to help him up, and the hair was moistened by the hot water so that it came down.' Then she said, 'I don't want to hurt him with my arm longer, and she left the house.'

The New York Gazette mentions 34

tentatively to the eyes the eye cups have been successfully advertised for the cure of near-sightedness. It says that the affair consists of a hollow cup, to be pressed upon the eye; a vacuum—so long as the instrument retains its ability to produce it—so to draw the blood to the eye, thus acting like the well-known cupping glass. In some cases a temporary increase of strength may be obtained by this stimulus; but the more certain and lasting effect will be inflammation and genuine weakness.
